letter co-signed by a consortium of environmental community groups has been sent to Mount Alexander Shire and Central Goldfields Shires seeking their support to have duck shooting banned in the Cairn Curran Reservoir area.

Signatories say the activity is no longer appropriate for safety reasons, and the area would be better served as a sanctuary to protect threatened species.

The move follows a community petition held in May 2021, to ban bird shooting in the area and turn it into a sanctuary, which obtained 483 signatures, mostly local.

This compares to a petition by shooters to have duck shooting remain, which only achieved 21 signatures, 11 local.

A spokesperson for Regional Victorians Opposed to Duck Shooting (RVOTDS) said "It's disappointing that GMW appear Continued on page 3

The Maldon Market continues in COVID-Safe mode

CENTRAL Victoria's favourite Hand Made and Home Grown Market has everything lined up for a spectacular eighth birthday market on Sunday 14 November, 9am to 1.30pm at our new COVIDSAFE home at the picturesque Bill Woodfull Recreation Reserve, Francis St Maldon.

Market Manager Chris Hain said, "What a fabulous journey we've had over the last eight years. From modest and humble beginnings we've now built one of the most popular hand-made and home-grown markets in regional Victoria.

"Whilst we missed a few markets during COVID lockdowns we've always just bounced back and got on with providing the best range of artisan products and produce from our region and beyond. We are looking forward to a fabulous market this Sunday. It's well and truly the middle of Spring so our 'verdant village green' setting should be sparkling and vibrant with shoppers from all over Victoria now that we are on our way to opening up again.

"Please join us for a leisurely stroll around the oval with a hot coffee and a pastry or a pie. You'll find all your favourite stallholders, many have been with us from the start back in 2013, and they'll be joined by a number of new traders who have been attracted by the positive reviews they've read for the market. "There's a wide range of fine local food and wine and of course there's always an impressive array of artisan crafted goods for all tastes.

Morning tea at Maldon Croquet Club

☆ Tarrangower dementia alliance and Maldon croquet club members met to plan a more dementia friendly club.

MALDON Croquet Club are showcasing their more dementia friendly facility at a morning tea on Thursday 18 November from 9.30am

Damien Kennedy, a spokesperson for the club, says that everyone is welcome to come along, enjoy some morning tea and maybe even have a go at playing croquet. "A Tarrangower Dementia Alliance member who is living with dementia will talk, explaining how simple changes can make life easier for people living with dementia, and why that's so important", says Damien.

"We have been supported by the alliance in making our club more accessible for people living with dementia. This is an opportunity to see our upgraded facility which allows members living with dementia to continue participating at the club and interacting socially."

"Come along, it's free and everyone is welcome".

Maldon Croquet Club is located on Francis Street.

Bookings are not required, but you can call Damien Kennedy on 0428 130 764 if you have any questions.

Calls to ban duck shooting at Cairn Curran Reservoir to be ignoring community sentiment, and safety risks. Since its construction, Cairn Curran now has many more residents living in proximity, and many more people keen to enjoy the amenity. The adverse impacts to community are clear, as the comments on the petition show."

BirdLife Castlemaine District, Castlemaine Field Naturalists Club and Friends of the Box IronBark Forests -Mount Alexander Region, co-signed the letters from RVOTDS inc to local shires, and MP Maree Edwards, seeking their support to pick up the fight.

"We understand Council can't ban it. We are asking them to lobby those who can, and represent ratepayers and other recreational users who want a safer, more peaceful public amenity."

In the year ending December 2019, over 1.4 million tourists birdwatched around Australia, and spent $2.88 billion. More domestic overnight tourists birdwatched, than visited the Great Barrier Reef, and the number of international tourists who birdwatched was more than double those who fished (Tourism Research Australia – National Visitor Survey).

"We believe these are the tourist dollars we are largely missing out on due to duck shooting," said a spokesperson for RVOTDS.

"Less than half of one percent of the population, (about 25,000 people) are licensed to shoot ducks. About half that number again (around 12,000), actually participate in the activity (– GMA data). But there are anywhere between 8,000- 35,000 public waterways – no government authority has been able to quantify it for us yet - where they can go to shoot birds. Surely Cairn Curran could be handed back to the local residents and the 99.98 percent of the non-shooting public to enjoy in peace."

Eaglehawk Motel has sold

After waiting years for the motel to sell, Chris is looking forward to spending time in the garden and writing.

CHRISTOPHER Creek and Deborah Benson have have owned and run the Eaglehawk Motel since January 2013. They have now secured a buyer for the motel after having it on the market for the past three to four years.

"We've been really impressed with Ed Carthew. He's kept us informed and given us feedback and he's been really invested in what we want," said Chris.

Chris is excited to settle down in Maldon and is hoping to spend his time completing a revised edition of Rich Vein, to try and include more of the First Nations' account.

He is also hoping to write another book about Maldon and possibly start a You-Tube channel with stories of Maldon.

"Stories are important," said Chris. "The First Nations' people have a lot to teach us about telling stories."

Amongst Chris' other passions he is looking forward to establishing a kitchen garden with herbs and fruit trees.

We hope you will join us.

As the state of Victoria opens up, with more visitors to the region, there will be more trains operating over coming months. On Sunday 31 October 2021 at approximately 4.45pm,

Please help banish Boneseed

☆ Boneseed (Chrysanthemoides moniliferea) is a declared noxious weed.

BONESEED (Chrysanthemoides monilifera), also called Bitou Bush, is an attractive but highly invasive shrub and is rapidly invading local native bushland and roadsides.

It spreads quickly and densely, smothering native plants that are necessary for nectar, food and habitat for our native

Letter to the Editor

Advice from experts

Personally, I prefer to listen to the advice from the experts (i.e. those who know what they're talking about). I've been double-vaxxed (AZ) for my own safety and peace of mind, but also to do my bit to protect those more vulnerable than me - especially people with compromised immune systems and those who can't be vaccinated (e.g. everyone under 12 at the moment).

There's also nothing experimental about any of the approved vaccines. They've all been rigorously tested and now administered to 10s of millions of people around the world. Any one of them gives you 90% protection against being killed by the virus and greatly reduces your risk of getting and spreading the disease.

There are plenty of places to look for good quality information. CSIRO's FAQ page is a good place to start: https://blog.csiro.au/why-get-vaccinated/.

☆ Boneseed refers to the seeds which are hard and bone-coloured.

bees, animals and birds.

Boneseed is a declared noxious weed, both a Weed of National Significance throughout Australia and Regionally Prohibited in the North Central Catchment Management Authority region. Like many of our noxious weeds, Boneseed plants were originally introduced from South Africa. They were imported as ornamental garden plants and used to stabilise soils.

Boneseed was deliberately, but misguidedly, planted in the You Yangs region (near Geelong) to control soil erosion in the late 1950s. Now the You Yangs Regional Park has one of the most dense infestations in Australia, smothering the native middle-story vegetation.

Boneseed is a perennial, woody, erect shrub growing to a height and width of 2-3 metres. It flowers in late winter and spring with daisy-like, bright yellow flowers. The oval-shaped, alternating leaves have distinctive irregularly toothed edges (see photo).

The name 'Boneseed' refers to the seeds, which are hard and bone-coloured, and usually fall to the ground during summer. Boneseed only germinates from seeds, but can grow in all kinds of soil – sand dunes, bushland, burnt soil and disturbed ground. Over time an extensive seed bank develops in the soil and fresh seedlings just keep on coming up.

The good news is that small Boneseed plants are very easy to hand-pull out of the ground (see photo) and you can just leave the removed plant on the ground to decompose. We're appealing to local community members to pull out all plants they possibly can whenever they're out walking in the bush or along the roadsides. Larger plants which are harder to pull out, need to be dealt with using herbicide and the 'cut and paint' method.

Property owners and managers are now required to control this plant on their land. Agriculture Victoria can provide specific requirements for your region and your local Landcare group can provide further information.

☆ Milly's owner recognised her signs of separation anxiety.

IT is an exciting time as we come out of COVID lockdown and start resuming our normal lives, however, changes to our routine can also be stressful.

As we head back to work or school, our pets may start to feel anxious or stressed due to being alone for greater periods of time. Dogs that suffer separation anxiety may have signs of increased vocalisation (eg. excessive whining or barking), destructive behaviour such as chewing and scratching at furniture or doors, or inappropriate toileting in the house. Sometimes separation anxiety is a learned behaviour, so if your pet did not previously suffer from separation anxiety then they may just require a bit of help to adjust to the new

Some tips to make this adjustment easier can include teaching your dog independence by allowing them to be alone for short periods of time. If you're at home all day avoid giving them constant undivided attention, and try to schedule small trips away from home. Keep your departures and arrivals fuss-free, and reward your dog for their calm behaviour. Keeping them preoccupied ie. with a food toy or puzzle mat, or having background music may help. The use of calming pheromones, such as Adaptil for dogs, can also be very effective - these are available as a spray, diffuser or collar.

For some dogs, separation anxiety is genetically predisposed, or a combination of genetics and learned behaviour. These cases often require behaviour training coupled with medication. If you're worried your pet may be suffering separation anxiety, you can contact your local vet clinic for advice.

Misguided motorists caught during Operation Compass

ALMOST 3900 motorists were detected speeding on Victorian roads during an eight-day safety blitz.

Operation Compass saw Victoria Police ramp up patrols over Melbourne Cup week, which coincided with travel restrictions lifting between metropolitan Melbourne and regional Victoria.

Assistant Commissioner Road Policing, Glenn Weir said, "While it's great we have regained the ability to travel across the state, it is extremely disappointing that police have seen such disregard towards road safety."

Police targeted major roads and highways leading to regional areas and tourism hotspots, with a total of 8641 traffic offences detected, and a further 523 were caught for alcohol or drug-related driving offences.

Speeding made up 45 per cent of all offences detected, with 3,077 motorists caught speeding between 10km/h and 25km/h over the speed limit.

Police also issued 343 fines to motorists caught using a mobile phone while driving, intercepted 541 disqualified or unlicenced drivers, identified 861 unregistered vehicles and impounded 176 vehicles.

Sadly there have been a further nine lives lost since Friday 29 October, with fatal collisions across the state, bringing the total lives lost to 200 this year, compared with 183 same time last year.

'Speed remains the number one contributing factor to fatalities and serious injury collision on our roads. Lives can be saved if people make better choices behind the wheel," said Glenn Weir.

"The speed limits are there to keep people safe, and we will continue to hold motorists who pose a risk to other road users to account. Everyone deserves to arrive at their destination alive."

Peter Mac committed to regional patients

PETER MacCallum Cancer Centre and Bendigo Health are delighted to announce the extension of their partnership to deliver radiotherapy services to regional Victorian patients.

Peter Mac has operated the Bendigo Radiotherapy Centre, within the Bendigo Hospital, via a five-year agreement up to 2021. The agreement has now been extended by five years to 2026, with an option to further extend to 2031.

Peter Mac Chief Executive Professor Shelley Dolan and Bendigo Health Chief Executive Peter Faulkner said the renewed agreement recognised the many benefits the partnership brought to people in Bendigo and surrounds.

"Peter Mac remains absolutely committed to ensuring cancer patients in Bendigo, the broader Loddon Mallee area and beyond, have access to a cutting-edge radiotherapy service close to their homes," said Professor Dolan.

We thank Bendigo Health for this extremely collaborative partnership and look forward to playing a central role within Bendigo Hospital's cancer service for many years to come."

Mr Faulkner, Bendigo Health Chief Executive, said: "The radiotherapy service provided by Peter Mac is a vital part of the integrated regional cancer centre at Bendigo

"We are very pleased to continue our strong partnership with Peter Mac as together we continue to provide excellent care to people with cancer in our region."

Peter Mac's Bendigo team includes highly skilled radiation oncologists, radiation therapists, medical physicists, specialist cancer nurses and allied health staff. This centre has two state-of-the-art linear accelerators (treatment machines) which each year provide more than 13,000 radiotherapy treatments to more than 900 patients.

As radiotherapy requires patients to return for daily treatment sessions over several weeks, travel is a factor and patients benefit from having radiotherapy services close to Learn to support mental health in young people

PARENTS and carers of young people in Mount Alexander Shire are invited to learn how to support young people struggling with mental health problems.

The Youth Mental Health First Aid course is for parents or carers of young people aged between 10 and 25 years.

"There is a lot to understand when it comes to mental health," said Shannon Lacy, Youth Development Officer, Mount Alexander Shire Council.

'This training covers the signs and symptoms of mental health problems; how to have a conversation with someone who is struggling and where to go for further help," said Ms Lacy.

"This is particularly relevant and important at the moment given the serious impact of COVID-19 on our young people's mental health. The skills learnt can also be used to support other family members, friends and colleagues."

Parent Kerrily Jennings completed the course, delivered by

'Being able to have open and honest conversations about youth mental health, in a group setting, was really helpful. It's given me more confidence in my ability to identify potential mental health concerns, and how to sensitively begin to

This current Youth Mental Health First Aid course combines online and face-to-face learning.

The face-to-face training will be held over two evenings from 5pm-9pm on Monday 15 November and Thursday 18 November at the Civic Centre, Corner of Lyttleton and Lloyd Streets, Castlemaine. Dinner will be provided both nights.

Registration of $70 covers the cost of course materials and catering. To book, visit the training page at www.mountalexandershireyouth.com.au/training.

Hills quarry between Shelbourne and Baringhup

In the TT (Oct 22), I read with concern of plans to establish a quarry between Shelbourne and Baringhup which will involve the removal of approximately 30 hectares of native vegetation from within the surrounding Box Iron Forest and Dry Heath Forest.

This is not acceptable for environmental and ethical

The climate crisis engulfing this planet is THE most important issue globally. It has been noted internationally that Australia is a laggard and actively hindering global efforts to limit climate change severity. The quarry plan demonstrates exactly that kind of dangerous attitude.

Removing forest which is currently efficient in carbon capture and providing habitat for native animals cannot be compensated with a promise equivalent in the amount of carbon captured or animals supported. Regrowth in this dry area is very slow... the entire gold fields still haven't recovered from the perature rise, removing any forest, anywhere, right now, is environmentally criminal.

I urge concerned people to mawsons.com.au).

Council creates new role to address housing challenges

MOUNT Alexander Shire Council has appointed a dedicated Housing Officer to address the opportunities for boosting affordable housing in the shire.

Clare Richards began in the new role early this month and has already begun meeting with community groups and other key stakeholders to understand the challenges and identify the opportunities for affordable long-term housing for low and middle-income households.

Mount Alexander Shire Council's Chief Executive Officer, Darren Fuzzard said Council had appointed Ms Richards to advocate for Victorian Government support to maximise those opportunities. "The Victorian Government has established a $5.3 billion Big Housing Build fund specifically to boost the supply of social and affordable housing and we want to access a share of that.

"For quite some time now our community has been calling loudly and clearly for Council to get involved in addressing housing affordability.

"In developing fresh plans to set our strategic direction, we asked our communities right across the shire what they wanted us to focus on and the lack of affordable housing repeatedly emerged as a priority," said Mr Fuzzard.

"It's now a clear objective in our new four-year Council Plan for 2021-2025 to do the best we can to address this."

Ms Richards has already met with members of the community-led My Home Network which was established in the shire in 2019 to address the same challenge.

She is also meeting with other local, state and private sector stakeholders to scope the needs, priorities and opportunities in our shire. That includes scoping out available sites and identifying funding.

"Housing affordability is all about ensuring all community members are able to live safely in our community," said Ms

"It's also about ensuring that we can keep our elders and our young people in our community as well as those who perform fundamental and essential services.

"That means having homes for rent or purchase available for low to moderate income households at a percentage of their income that also allows them to meet their essential living costs and is sustainable for them over the long term."

Ms Richards said a lack of affordable housing was affecting communities everywhere and that current conditions were especially challenging for creating opportunities for it to be

"We have an influx of people seeking housing. Our builders and developers are busy and accessing suitable smaller and medium sized sites is challenging.

"However most people know somebody either in their own families or their neighbourhoods or communities whose housing needs are not being met and it's my job to lead Council's

Ms Richards is an experienced advocate for local government at state and federal government level and in the private sector (on housing, community, health and aged care services).

Ross and Nat Egleton

ROSS and Nat were married amongst bushland in Hesket, near Romsey, on Black Saturday.

The bride and groom, and their wedding guests, had no idea of the potential danger they were in until the following morning when they watched the news.

"The wind changed when the ceremony began," said Nat. "It started raining and just as we were saying our vows it became eerie and calm. We didn't know at the time but the fire was heading towards our home in Hurstbridge and at that moment the fire changed direction, away from our home."

"We jumped in the car and headed off on our honeymoon, stopping in Kangaroo Flat for a hamburger on our way to Nambucca Heads in NSW," said Ross, "and the town became flooded while we were there! Oh and remember the septic tank burst at the wedding too? And it was so hot on the day, 47 degree heat, that all the guests jumped in the lake after the ceremony."

I met with Ross, Nat and their beautiful daughters, Essie and Alice, at their mudbrick house, nestled at the base of Mount Tarrengower, on 23 acres of land.

The house was originally built in the 70s by Ken and Jenny Svenson who lived in a caboose on the property while they built the house using hand-made mud-bricks.

"It was a lot of work," said Nat. "Part of the house was unfinished We moved here 10 years ago and have been working on the place and gardens ever since. We worked off the original drawings of the extra part of the house and re-designed some of it."

"In a way, we've finished off their dream," said Ross.

"They said it would be finished by my eighth birthday," said their eldest daughter Essie. "I'm now 12," she laughs.

Also dwelling in or around the house is a horse, three dogs, three cats, a rabbit and

"When it comes to getting rescue dogs, Ross plants the seed, I find them and Ross says, 'yep lets get it." laughs

Ross, who has been coaching the under 11 football team in Maldon for the past few years, is also the chair of the board for the Maldon & District Community Bank and currently works in a 20 week men's behaviour change program.

He initially completed a commerce degree, worked for a year in a 'white collar job' before deciding he didn't enjoy the work, and travelled around Australia for 18 months with a friend. He then went on to work as a teacher at a University in Cambodia for a year.

"That was amazing, living three hours from town with no power" said Ross. "We were educating the poorer parts of the country. That's what got me into people work.'

Ross spent a year in Vanuatu with AusAid, mentoring in a hospital and helping them with their business systems.

He then travelled around Asia, lived in Edinburgh and Holland, before getting home-sick and returning to Australia where he worked in youth, disability and housing and foster care. He also set up programs at Middleton Prison in Castlemaine and helping progress Renewable Newstead.

Nat, who has been the CEO of the Foundation for Rural and Regional Renewal (FRRR), for the past six years, initially began her career working in aged-care at the age of 16.
"The director of nursing took me under her wing and trained me and I loved working and building a relationship with the residents. I began my nursing degree, but discovered there was too much science," laughed Nat. "I went back to University so Ross came in.

"My role was to manage donors and do fundraising and Ross' mum was a huge supporter. I didn't realise they were related so I introduced them to each other," Nat laughs. "Ross mentored me during a tough patch at

"Actually we'd go to the pub and you'd complain about the boss and I'd give you advice you wouldn't take," laughed Ross.

Nat then went on to work in a not-for-profit organisation where she worked for four years, while studying her Masters in organisational dynamics. She then took maternity leave and the pair moved to Castlemaine.

"The job came up for a program manager with FRRR, but it was full time. I met when I was 20 and studied social sciences, majoring in policy, research and public relations, then went onto work for a youth organisation called Typo Station as their marketing manager. It was a seven-week residential program for youth at risk and that's where I met Ross. He used to work for the organisation and I needed a guest speaker, another mother on the train from Melbourne one day and we got talking and it turns out she was interested in the job too, so we decided to job share," said Nat. "The organisation gets funding from business, government and philanthropists and delivers grant programs and funding packages which help rural communities to be strong and vital, as well as for things like fire or flood-affected communities."

"They had 72 applicants for the CEO position and they picked her," said Ross with pride. "And how much money did you raise last year?" he

"It was reasonably grassroots when I stepped into the CEO role with around 10 employees. Now we have around 35 employees and distributed just under 20 million dollars last year."

The program is national so it involves a lot of travel with Nat having to catch three to four flights a week, pre-COVID. She told me she became very good at packing so she only had carry on luggage, even for a two week trip, buying clothes that didn't need ironing and even cutting her hair short to save time.

"It's amazing," said Nat. "We give out around 900 grants a year to small communities to provide long term support and forward-looking initiatives. I love it, it ticks all my boxes."

I asked the pair what they enjoy doing in their spare time, if any, to which Ross replied, "I've earmarked down time for January next year. Those chairs over there," he points to outdoor chairs near the pool. "We've never actually sat in those chairs.

"I also love tinkering in the garden.'

"So do I," said Nat. "And I'm renowned for my nana naps. I think I was destined to live in Europe or Spain," Nat laughs.

Freedom

Thunder clashed, guns shot and gas filled the air. It was worse than he could ever imagine. The smoke stung his eyes and mud stuck to his boots. BANG! Blood splattered and the man's friends fell to the ground. He wished he could help them, but he knew he must keep going. In the distance, explosions screamed and sirens shrieked. The rain splattered the man's hair to his forehead. As the clouds darkened and the sky grew even murkier, thoughts turned to home. He could smell the sweet scent of his wife baking, heard his daughter laughing and felt the soft hands of his baby son. Every step was pain, but he knew the pain could bring freedom.

Some thoughts about Remembrance Day from the Prep/1 classroom...

All of us need to stand outside for one minute. We stand to remember the soldiers who fought in the army. I think they were brave in the war. By Lillie

The animals helped the soldiers so they could survive. I remember the soldiers struggled to climb the gigantic mountains. Thank you for saving our land. I think you were so respectful to our land. By Thomas

Remembrance Day is a day when we all get together and remember what the soldiers did for us. Remembrance Day is also when we remember the animals and what they did for us too. By Darcy Remembrance Day is very important. The soldiers are very special. By Frances

In the war there wasn't just people, there were animals too. The animals were dogs, horses, donkeys and camels. Only one horse was allowed to come home. I want to give a big thank you to the soldiers for what they have done, so THANK YOU! By Freycie

Thank you for protecting us in World War I and II. I remember some soldiers dug burrows to protect themselves from the other soldiers. From Nash

Update on new streetlights in Maldon

The next step in our commitment to restore Maldon's streetscapes to their historic gold rush glory is underway, with the installation of new streetlights in the town.

Dark pasts and Murder

Walk the Wire by David Baldacci

When Amos Decker and his FBI colleague Alex Jamison are called to London, North Dakota, they instantly sense that the thriving fracking town is ripe for trouble. The promise of a second gold rush has attracted an onslaught of newcomers all hoping for a windfall, and the community is growing faster than houses can be built. The sudden boom has also brought problems with it, including drugs, property crimes, prostitution and the murder of a young woman, whose body was expertly autopsied and dumped.

IMT - In Maldon Today Radio Program

TODAY AP and EC (that's Alison and Elizabeth) release some feminine power in the MAINfm studio. Watch out.

Last Friday Nancy and Keveen (pictured) spent a couple of hours chatting about all the exciting things that occurred in and around Maldon during the long weekend. This included two fashion parades, one at Panacea Estate in aid of the Blue Light Camp and the other at the Maldon Neighbourhood Centre in aid of the McGrath Foundation. There was also a feast of music around the town, including two days at the Kangaroo Hotel and a lovely concert by the Platform Souls under the trees in Holy Trinity church grounds. Plus the eagerly awaited opening of Table et Terroir.

Next Friday we expect to be allowed guests in the studio, so IMT is going big – with Adam Isaacs from Maldon Take-away, plus Kylie Trott from Maldon Inc (and Beaton's of course). Lauren and Stevo will be asking the tough questions about wrapping fish and chips.

The Lovers by John Connolly

Deprived of his private investigator's licence, Charlie Parker takes a job in a Portland bar. He uses his enforced retirement to begin a different kind of investigation of his own past and an inquiry into the death of his father, who took his own life after apparently shooting dead two unarmed teenagers. This will lead Parker to question all that he believed about his beloved parents. Haunting the shadows, as they have done throughout Parker's life, are two figures: a man and a woman who seem driven to bring an end to Charlie Parker's existence.

The Black Book by James Patterson

Billy Harney was born to be a cop. Amy Lentini, a hard charging assistant state's attorney hell-bent on making a name for herself suspects Billy isn't the cop he claims to be.

MALDON BRIDGE CLUB

We are back!

'VERRY Elleegant' could well have been the omen tip for the Melbourne Cup on the first Tuesday in November. 'Willowy' winning the Oaks could also have been another tip to follow. Why you may ask?

As we arrived for our afternoon Bridge play it was pleasing to see a table of 'Verry Elleegantly' dressed Ladies, adorned with 'Willowy' outfits and accessories, seated for lunch and ready to enjoy their annual Oaks luncheon at the Maldon Hotel. Some normality at last and enjoy they did!

Our Bridge members were very happy to be back to play at the tables once again and took time to catch up on members' 'happenings' since lock-down began. The field was a bit depleted with 'scratchings' due to commitments for the Oaks Day holiday. Nevertheless, the group soon settled into play and with a decision made to shorten the rounds, the pressure was off and enabled everyone to relax and take time to make good decisions, hopefully, re bidding.

We have had a few birthdays since our last game which unfortunately we could not celebrate in person. Lillian and Campbells Creek Jan along with Ken were the most recent and a belated Happy Birthday is wished to them.

Our regular player, Castlemaine Jan is 'resting' in hospital after a delayed operation due to COVID. Jan was wished a speedy recovery and look forward to her return soon.

That being the end of the update it is now onto the scores. In first place by possibly 10 lengths, were Ken and Sandy with 48 points and the best of the North-South ends. Their regular on-line games have kept them well tuned and fit for the 'run' so no need to swab this time!

There was an equal second between Judy S and Danny along with Louise and Kevin with 38 points from the East-West ends. Fred and Aileen were fourth with 32 points East-West.

Congratulations to all players and we look forward to getting back next week and members returning.

Whatever your age group or skills please feel free to join us each Thursday from 12.45pm to 4.30pm to help us in our endeavour to:

A horrifying murder leads to an unexpected address, an exclusive brothel which caters to Chicago's most powerful citizens. There's plenty of incriminating evidence on the scene but what matters most is what's missing: the madam's black book.

As everyone who's anyone in Chicago scrambles to get their hands on the elusive black book, no one's motives can be trusted.

The Boy from the Woods by Harlan Coben The man known as Wilde was found as a boy living feral in the woods, with no memory of his past. After the police concluded an exhaustive hunt for his family, which was never found, Wilde was turned over to the foster system.

Thirty years later, Wilde is back living in the woods, as an outcast, comfortable only outdoors. A local girl goes missing, Wilde uses his unique skills to help find her.

BLAST FROM THE PAST

CINDERELLA

On the evening of Thursday, 20 September 1917, the Temperance Hall, (now the Community Centre), was crowded for an entertainment given by the children of the Maldon State School. Nearly 200 seats had been reserved for the performance and the rest were quickly filled, leaving a number of late comers disappointed when they were unable to gain admission. Under the supervision of the head teacher, Robert Smith, and his wife, Ada, the children had spent six weeks preparing for the evening's program, which comprised a concert and an operetta entitled 'Cinderella'.

A group of girls from the infant class presented the first items on the program. They sang several songs including a lullaby, 'Dolly will go to sleep' and a humorous number titled 'My cup of chamomile tea'. Five junior boys, including a very young Keith Laity, dressed in khaki then amused the audience by each reciting a verse describing their rank and finished by performing a comic drill. The first part of the entertainment also included a Maypole dance and a solo performance by Holyrod McArthur of the patriotic song, 'When Australia's boys come home'.

The second part of the entertainment was the operetta 'Cinderella', which had been especially written for school-children by English composers Foxwell and Ramsey in the 1890s. More that 70 students made up the cast. Clarice Moore played the role of Cinderella and Will Trengrove played the Prince.

The highlight of the evening was the ballroom scene in which the stage was crowded with dancers and courtiers, all dressed in elaborate costumes. The operetta ended with a great tableau featuring all the performers arranged in tiers with the principals in the centre.

The entertainment was such a success that there were immediate requests for a further performance to let those who had been unable to gain admission a chance to see the show. The second performance took place on Tuesday 9 October and was again a great success. The two evenings raised a total of £36 for the Returned Soldiers' Fund.

ARBOREAL INTERFERENCE

☆ Back to back they faced each other, threw their boules and ...

ON Sunday 7 November, the piste monitor was hard at work clearing the piste as we arrived, providing a relatively untrammelled surface, if one avoided the grassy knoll.

However, as we all know pétanque is an all terrain game, sometimes made more challenging by Mother Nature's erratic approach to spring. It was delightful to be playing without masks at long last. And we welcomed Kevin and Jenny back from three months isolation in Melbourne.

Two rather quick games ensued in ideal spring weather. Despite some arboreal interference from overhanging greenery, some brilliant shots were executed, not to mention an ongoing feud regarding clothing, which somehow brought Peter Alexander into the discussion. I'll let you work out the potential

Despite these distractions, the games continued apace, and finally first place went to Cap'n P, Elaine and Viv with 2 wins and +17 points. Equal second place went to Carole and Steve AND Kevin and Jenny with 1 win and +1 point.

Mme Bleue, Antoine and EC rated fourth place, with 1 win and 0 points. Fifth place went to Geoff, Barb and Craig, ☆ Kevin's stylish stance.

with 1 win and - 6 points. Maxeen and Ann were 'lucky last' winning the Losers' Chocs with 0 wins and -13 points.

The soporific weather lulled players into dreamily going home to sit outside with a glass of something delicious, and while away the rest of the afternoon. We play again, on Sunday 21 November, at 1.45 for a 2pm start. Come and join us. Bring your smart phone to scan the QR code.
